FRANKFORT YOUTH SUSTAINABILITY COUNCIL

The Frankfort Youth Sustainability Council is a group of high school students across the county and city who are dedicated to addressing issues of sustainability within their schools and community. These students will work together to design projects focused on waste reduction, recycling and conservation and will work to implement these initiatives, and educate students and citizens.

The Youth Sustainability Council will be facilitated by Blair Hecker, Franklin County Solid Waste Administrator and Certified Environmental Educator. This council will meet monthly, and council members will determine meeting times and dates.

If you are a high school student with an interest in sustainability, and possess skills in leadership, teamwork and creativity, please fill out the following application. You are applying to be part of the council for the 2015-2016 school year. Applications should be returned to your school's office by Friday, April 3. Members will be announced on May 15.
